

Along the Way

- (1) Dialogue is like a journey made together on foot through unknown terrain. Where we do not move as one, we simply stop, back up and start over again. It is the movement of the journey itself which is somehow primary, and not any predetermined destination or goal.
- (2) Along the way, what was once a gift of Chance sometimes becomes Necessity's next step into the unknown.

(Photo: Perfect Spring Snow, the Alps)