

LEGACY IN AN UPSIDE-DOWN WORLD?

Some cultures do not mind their Capital until it's almost spent. Others, do not care for their Rivers and Forests until they are almost gone.

Oh America of the North, of the silver dollar of wilderness, what will you leave your children?—but a tarnished nickel of true forest, but two pence worth of a whole continent once shimmering with free-flowing streams.

This they receive from us, and yet is they who must pay the bills for a collapsing climate and the mountains of waste we leave behind.

SPIRE FIRS, reflected (Abies lasiocarpa) at 2300 m. Will they replace the dying
Whitebark Pines?