

(Image: Center of Centers—small tarn in an alpine moor—the European Alps)

The Bell

The point at the center of a cross, where wet and cold meets warm and dry,
and where flowing waters and cultures divide.

North side and South side—how could I ever choose? Swaying back and forth, I am the bell that rings out on all sides.