

When I play true, even though I may make mistakes, all the many voices move as one, and even the softest of sounds can be heard;

When I play false, though I do not drop a note, the different voices begin to contradict and fight against each other, until even the loudest of sounds can be heard by no one.