

(Image: Lost in the Shuffle. Charles Ives was a master at weaving the single thread of a simple melody into a wonderfully rich and complex tapestry of sound.)

There are those artists who transform the string of precious stones which is melody into mere black marks on a page;

And there are those who transform the black marks on a page into the string of precious stones.

—Music is the difference.