

(Image: Braided Glacier Stream—2000 meters, the central European Alps)

Watercourse Way

Balance in Art follows the natural movements of water and weather. Fast mountain streams give way to the slow curves of lowland rivers and the broad expanse of the sea; Dark cold rains are followed by bright skies and the warming sun. Balance is never either / or, but rather the course which runs in between. The culture which has lost direct contact with this symphony of life will gradually lose its sense of balance in Art as well.