[Have you got a Brook . . .]

Have you got a Brook in your little heart,
Where bashful flowers blow,
And blushing birds go down to drink,
And shadows tremble so—

And nobody knows, so still it flows,
That any brook is there,
And yet your little draught of life
Is daily drunken there—

Why, look out for the little brook in March,
When the rivers overflow,
And the snows come hurrying from the hills,
And the bridges often go—

And later, in August it may be—
When the meadows parching lie,
Beware, lest the little brook of life,
Some burning noon go dry!

Emily Dickinson (136)
